14 ORDER

15 This case arises out of a wrongful foreclosure action by Shannon Parker (Plaintiff).
16 Currently before the Court is a Motion for Summary Judgment by Defendants Bank of 17 America, N.A.; Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation (“Freddie Mac”); and 18 ReconTrust Company, N.A. (collectively “Defendants”). For the reasons given herein, the 19 Court denies Defendants’ Motion for Summary Judgment (Mot. Summ. J., ECF No. 24).

20 BACKGROUND

21 Plaintiff Shannon Parker purchased real property located at 3085 Rowland Road, 22 Reno, Nevada 89509 (the “Property”) on July 25, 2007. (Deed, ECF No. 13-1). To finance 23 the purchase of the Property, she obtained a $263,000 loan from Countrywide Bank, FSB, 24 which was secured by a deed of trust (the “Deed of Trust”). (Deed of Trust 2, ECF No. 13-25 2). The Deed of Trust named Countrywide Bank as lender, ReconTrust Company as 26 trustee, and Mortgage Electronic Registration Systems, Inc. (“MERS”) as nominee and 27 beneficiary. (Id.).

28 On March 12, 2009, MERS substituted The Cooper Castle Law Firm as trustee of the Deed of Trust. (Substitution of Trustee, ECF No. 13-3). MERS then assigned all

(54) 【発明の名称】 電子カメラ装置

(57) 【要約】

【課題】動画撮影時に、撮影条件の再設定を可能にして適正な撮影条件での静止画撮影を実現できる電子カメラ装置に提供することにある。

【解決手段】動画撮影機能及び静止画撮影機能の両機能を有する電子カメラが開示されている。システムコントローラ12は、動画撮影中に静止画レリーズボタン140の操作入力に応じて、静止画撮影用の撮影条件を設定するための絞り・シャッタ設定部121及び静止画処理部111を機能させる動画/静止画切替部120を有する。絞り・シャッタ設定部121は、入力操作系14からの設定入力に従って、撮影系10の絞り値及びシャッタスピードを設定する。

【特許請求の範囲】

【請求項1】 動画撮影機能及び静止画撮影機能を有する電子カメラ装置であって、所定の撮影条件で動画撮影動作を実行する動画撮影手段と、静止画撮影を指示する指示手段と、静止画撮影の撮影条件を設定できる設定手段と、前記指示手段により前記動画撮影動作中に静止画撮影動作を実行するときに、前記設定手段により設定された撮影条件で当該静止画撮影動作を実行する静止画撮影手段とを具備したことを特徴とする電子カメラ装置。

【請求項2】 前記静止画撮影手段は、前記設定手段により撮影条件が設定されていない場合には、前記動画撮影手段での所定の撮影条件で静止画撮影動作を実行することを特徴とする請求項1記載の電子カメラ装置。

【請求項3】 前記静止画撮影動作時に、ストロボ装置を動作させるストロボ制御手段を有する特徴とする請求項1記載の電子カメラ装置。

【請求項4】 前記設定手段は、静止画撮影時のシャッタースピードまたは絞り値に関係する撮影条件を任意に設定できる機能を有することを特徴とする請求項1記載の電子カメラ装置。

【請求項5】 前記静止画撮影動作時に、オートフォーカス機構を制御してレンズ系を固定させる手段を有する特徴とする請求項1記載の電子カメラ装置。

【請求項6】 前記動画撮影動作時の撮像画素密度と、前記静止画撮影動作時の撮像画素密度とを切替えて、当該動画撮影動作時の撮像画素密度を相対的に低減させる手段を有することを特徴とする請求項1記載の電子カメラ装置。

【請求項7】 前記動画撮影手段は動画撮影動作用の撮像素子を有し、前記静止画撮影手段は静止画撮影動作用の撮像素子を有する構成であることを特徴とする請求項1記載の電子カメラ装置。

【0001】

【発明の属する技術分野】 本発明は、特に動画撮影機能及び静止画撮影機能を有する電子カメラ装置に関する。

【0002】

【従来の技術】 近年、被写体を電子的撮像機能により画像データに変換して、当該画像データを記録媒体に記録する電子カメラが普及している。電子カメラは、デジタルカメラとも呼ばれている電子スチールカメラ以外に、動画撮影を主機能とするデジタルビデオカメラも含む。

【0003】 ところで、最近の電子カメラには、静止画撮影機能と動画撮影機能の両者を備えた製品が開発されている。具体例としては、図3に示す構成要素を有する電子カメラである（文献としては例えば特開平10-108121号公報を参照）。

【0004】 この電子カメラでは、レンズ、CCD等の撮像素子、A/Dコンバータを含む撮像部1が設けられて、当該撮像部1から得られたデジタル画像データ（以下単に画像データと表記する）がバッファ部2を介して静止画記録部3に送られる。一方、当該画像データは、画素密度変換部4により画素密度が低減される処理を経て、動画記録部5に送られる。静止画記録部3は、画像データを静止画像として画像圧縮などの画像処理を実行し、例えばメモリカード等の記録媒体6に記録する。また、動画記録部5は、画素密度が低減された画像データ（静止画より画素数の少ない画像データ）を動画として画像処理を実行し、記録媒体6に記録する。

【0005】 ここで、動画撮影動作中に、静止画撮影の指示（指示信号S）が与えられると、撮像部1から得られた静止画撮影時の画像データをバッファ部2に一時的に格納する。そして、動画記録部5による動画記録動作が完了するのを待って（完了信号E）、静止画記録部3はバッファ部2に格納された画像データを静止画像として処理し、記録媒体6に記録する。

【0006】

【発明が解決しようとする課題】 前述したように、静止画撮影機能と動画撮影機能の両者を備えた電子カメラであれば、ユーザは動画撮影中に、シャッタチャンスがあれば静止画撮影（いわゆる写真撮影）を行なうことができる。しかしながら、静止画撮影と動画撮影とは単なる解像度（画素密度）の相違だけでなく、いわゆる撮影条件が本質的に異なる。

【0007】 即ち、静止画撮影では、単に画像を高解像度で取込むだけでなく、レンズの絞り状態や、シャッタースピードなどの撮影条件を適正に設定することにより、要望の写真（静止画）の撮影が可能となる。換言すれば、動画撮影モードを維持している状態で、静止画撮影を実行する場合には、動画撮影時の撮影条件から静止画撮影の撮影条件に再設定（変更）することが望ましい。

【0008】 そこで、本発明の目的は、動画撮影時に、撮影条件の再設定を可能にして適正な撮影条件での静止画撮影を実現できる電子カメラ装置を提供することにある。

【0009】

【課題を解決するための手段】 本発明は、動画撮影機能及び静止画撮影機能の両機能を有する電子カメラ装置に関し、所定の撮影条件で動画撮影動作を実行する動画撮影手段と、静止画撮影動作を指示する指示手段と、静止画撮影の撮影条件を設定できる設定手段と、設定手段により設定された撮影条件で静止画撮影動作を実行する静止画撮影手段とを有する装置である。当該静止画撮影手段は、動画撮影動作中に設定された撮影条件で静止画撮影動作を実行する。設定手段は、動画撮影動作の前後に関係なく、任意の撮影条件を設定できる機能を有する。

【0010】 静止画撮影の撮影条件は、具体的には、シ

1 implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing. (Order, ECF No. 30.). On August 8, 2012, 2 the Court granted Defendant's Motion to Stay Discovery. (Mot. Stay Disc., ECF No. 34).
 3 This Court now addresses Defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment (ECF No. 24) on 4 the two remaining breach of contract claims.

5 LEGAL STANDARD

6 The purpose of summary judgment is to dispose of factually unsupported claims and 7 defenses. Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323-24 (1986). "The court shall grant 8 summary judgment if the movant shows that there is no genuine dispute as to any material 9 fact and the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law." FED. R. CIV. P. 56(a).

10 When presented with a motion for summary judgment, the court employs a burden-11 shifting analysis. If the moving party fails to satisfy its initial burden, the court must deny 12 the motion for summary judgment and need not consider the nonmoving party's evidence.
 13 See Adickes v. S.H. Kress & Co., 398 U.S. 144, 159-60 (1970). A moving party meets its 14 initial burden when it presents evidence "which would entitle it to a directed verdict if the 15 evidence went uncontested at trial." C.A.R. Transp. Brokerage Co. v. Darden Rests., Inc., 213 F.3d 474, 480 (9th Cir. 2000) (quoting Houghton v. South, 965 F.2d 1532, 1536 17 (9th Cir. 1992)). In such circumstances, "the moving party has the initial burden of 18 establishing the absence of a genuine issue of fact on each issue material to its case." 19 Houghton at 1537. If the moving party meets its initial burden, "the burden will then shift to 20 the opposing party, who must present significant probative evidence tending to support its 21 claims or defenses." Intel Corp. v. Hartford Accident & indem. Co., 952 F.2d 1551, 1558 22 (9th Cir.). To show a genuine issue of material fact, the opposing party is not required to 23 establish a material issue of fact conclusively in its favor. Rather, it is sufficient that "the 24 claimed factual dispute be shown to require a jury or judge to resolve the parties' differing 25 versions of the truth at trial." T.W. Elec. Serv., Inc. v. Pac. Elec. Contractors Ass'n, 809 26 F.2d 626, 630 (9th Cir. 1987) (quoting First Nat'l Bank of Ariz. v. Cities Serv. Co., 391 U.S.
 27 253, 289 (1968)). In essence, the nonmoving party cannot avoid summary judgment by 28 solely relying on conclusory allegations that are unsupported by factual data. See Taylor v.

1 List, 880 F.2d 1040, 1045 (9th Cir. 1989). At the very threshold, when considering a 2 summary judgment, the court is to evaluate whether there are any genuine factual issues 3 that can be resolved only by a finder of fact. Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S.
 4 242, 249 (1986). In reviewing a motion for summary judgment, the court construes the 5 evidence in the light most favorable to the nonmoving party. Bagdadi v. Nazar, 84 F.3d 6 1194, 1197 (9th Cir.).

7 DISCUSSION

8 This case is distinguished from most wrongful foreclosure cases wherein the 9 homeowner brings an action to stay the foreclosure proceedings until it is determined if 10 foreclosing party is legally authorized to proceed, or, if the foreclosure sale has already 11 occurred, plaintiff often pleads to void the sale. Here, Plaintiff is seeking damages for 12 harm she suffered due to Defendants' alleged breach of contract. (See Complaint, 8-9, 13 ECF No. 1-1). The remaining two claims, which survived an earlier Rule (12)(b)(6) motion 14 to dismiss, consist of Plaintiff's well pleaded allegations that Defendant breached a 15 contractual agreement and breached the covenant of good faith and fair dealing required 16 of all contracts. (Id.) Specifically, Plaintiff alleges the parties had entered into an 17 agreement for a loan modification wherein Plaintiff performed during the trial period by 18 making timely payments. (Id.) However, Plaintiff alleges that Defendants raised the monthly 19 payment amount which effectually changed the terms of the agreement and, thus, 20 breached the covenant of good faith and fair dealings, as well as the agreed upon contract.
 21 (Id.) In Plaintiff's reply to this motion, she claims to be entitled to actual, punitive, and 22 reliance damages. (Id.).

23 In order to prevail in this Motion for Summary Judgment, Defendants have the 24 burden to show dispositive facts relating to one or more of the required elements in 25 Plaintiff's remaining claims. See Houghton at 1537. The elements of a breach of contract 26 claim are: (1) formation of a valid contract; (2) breach by the defendant; and (3) damages 27 resulting from the breach. Saini v. Int'l Came Tech., 434 F.Supp.2d 913, 919-20 (D. Nev.
 28 2006). Defendants argue that Plaintiff has no common law damages under a contractual 1 or quasi contractual theory. (Mot. Summ. J. 5, ECF No. 24).

2 A. Reliance Damages

3 Defendants assert that Plaintiff has no reliance damages as a matter of law. (Defs['] 4 Reply Supp. Mot. Summ. J. 5, ECF No. 38). Reliance damages places the non breaching 5 party in as good of a position as he would have been in had the contract not been made. 6 See RESTATEMENT (SECOND) of CONTRACTS § 344(b) (1981). The non breaching party is 7 entitled to reimbursement of expenses she incurred in reliance on the contract. Id. 8 Defendants argue since “Plaintiff lived in a “free house” for nearly three years . . . [she] 9 suffered no compensable out of pocket loss in this case because she paid less than she 10 owed on the original mortgage during the trial period and then nothing until the November 11 30, 2011 foreclosure.” (Defs['] Reply Supp. Mot. Summ. J. 5, ECF No. 38). There are at 12 least two additional issues not addressed by the Defendants.

13 The first is whether Plaintiff’s payments during the trial period were made in reliance 14 on Defendants’ promise to provide the loan modification upon completion of the six month 15 trial period, Plaintiff argues the monthly payment of $1482.01, even though less than the 16 original mortgage, was the amount the parties had agreed upon as a trial payment which 17 would then convert into the final loan modification payment amount. (See Complaint 3, 18 ECF No. 1-1). If it is proven that Plaintiff would not have made those payments in an 19 attempt to salvage her default, but for her reliance on Defendants’ promise that, upon 20 completion, the existing loan would be modified with the same payments as in the trial, she 21 may then be entitled to reliance damages in the amount of those payments and other 22 consequential and incidental damages. See RESTATEMENT (SECOND) of CONTRACTS § 23 344(b) (1981). Defendants have proffered no evidence showing that Plaintiff’s reliance is 24 misplaced and that there was no promise to keep the amount of the payment the same as 25 during the trial period.

26 The second issue regards the period after Plaintiff spoke to the representative from 27 Bank of America and was instructed not to remit any payments until further notice. The 28 issue is whether Plaintiff’s reliance on the representative’s instructions not to pay until

1 further notice was the actual and proximate cause of Plaintiff's decision to forego other 2 options which could have financially benefitted her—including, but not limited to, remitting 3 payments to Defendants. Plaintiff claims her reliance on the bank was based on the 4 following events: instruction not to pay, qualification under the final plan, continuing loan 5 modification negotiation, and the bank's postponement of the sale. (Id. at 8-9). Defendants 6 sole argument disputing reliance damages is that Plaintiff actually benefitted financially 7 from this situation because she "lived in a free house for nearly three years." (Defs['] Reply 8 Supp. Mot. Summ. J. 6, ECF No. 38). Though the fact that she stayed in a house for free 9 for almost three years may be undisputed, and may mitigate damage amounts, there 10 remain material facts that are in dispute. Ultimately, at issue is whether Plaintiff's reliance 11 on Defendants' promise to perform was the actual and proximate cause of the harm 12 suffered due to Defendants breach. For example, before the trial period and after, would 13 Plaintiff have taken other measures to remedy the default, but for her reliance on 14 Defendants' initial promise and latter instructions? For the reasons stated above, the Court 15 finds there are genuine issues of material fact regarding reliance damages.

16 B. Expectation Damages

17 Defendants argue that because the property was auctioned and sold for $180,000, 18 and plaintiff owed $319,198.15, there was no equity from which Plaintiff could have 19 profited. (Id. at 4). From this fact, Defendants conclude Plaintiff has no expectation 20 damages because she could not have sold the property for a profit. (Id.). Expectation 21 damages are awarded to put the non breaching party in as good a position as he would 22 have been in had the contract been performed. RESTATEMENT (SECOND) of CONTRACTS § 23 344(a). The measure of damages is set forth in the Restatements. "The injured party has a 24 right to damages based on his expectation interest as measured by (a) the loss in the value 25 to him of the other party's performance caused by its failure or deficiency, plus (b) any 26 other loss, including incidental or consequential loss, caused by the breach, less © any 27 cost or other loss that he has avoided by not having to perform. RESTATEMENT (SECOND) of 28 CONTRACTS § 347. Though Defendants' argument is factual, it limits the expectation

1 interest to the moment of their breach and subsequent liquidation of the property. Had 2 Defendant performed and Plaintiff been allowed to cure the default with the loan 3 modification, and had both parties performed through the remaining of the contract, 4 Plaintiff's expectation interest would necessarily amount to the value of the real property 5 free of a mortgage, unencumbered with debt. Further, even while the property remains 6 mortgaged, at some point in the future it is just as likely as not that the Plaintiff would be in 7 an equity position on her property; market fluctuations determining the reality of this. Thus, 8 since expectation damages are to place the non breaching party in as good a position as if 9 the contract had been performed, the amount of those damages is not necessarily limited 10 to the property's value at the time of breach, which in this case, was long before the 11 contract's maturity date. However, Incidental or consequential losses must be foreseeable 12 at the time of contract by the breaching party or they are not recoverable. See 13 RESTATEMENT (SECOND) of CONTRACTS § 351(1). A loss is foreseeable as a probable result 14 of the breach when it follows in the ordinary course of events, or as a result of special 15 circumstances, beyond the ordinary course of events that the party in breach has reason to 16 know. See id. at 351(2)(a)(b). Here, even though Defendants point to the inequity in the 17 property as evidence Plaintiff suffered no damages because she owed more than the 18 property was worth at the time it was liquidated, the fact that they allegedly breached the 19 loan modification agreement during this time of depressed housing market, Plaintiff's 20 damages may include the loss of profits she otherwise could have realized if the market 21 had not been depressed. The issue then becomes whether this loss was foreseeable by 22 Defendants.

23 Defendants cite to a California Court of Appeals real estate wrongful foreclosure case 24 from 1970. (See Defs['] Reply Supp. Mot. Summ. J. 4, ECF No. 38, citing Munger v.
25 Moore, 11 Cal. App. 3d 1, 11 (Cal. Ct. App. 1970)). Four decades ago, the Munger court 26 determined that in an unauthorized sale from a trustee, he or his principle is liable to the 27 mortgagor for the value of the property at the time of the sale in excess of mortgages and 28 liens against the property. See Munger, 11 Cal. App. at 11. Defendants argue that Plaintiff

1 cannot seek damages for the loss of real property and at the same time ignore the secured
2 debt that burdened the property at the time of the sale. (Defs['] Reply Supp. Mot. Summ. J.
3 5, ECF No. 38). Though Munger may provide some logical reasoning in a normal real 4 estate market, where a plaintiff is seeking compensation for wrongfully being denied his 5 share of the appreciated property, here, it is neither persuasive, nor binding. Further, it is 6 not analogous to the facts of this case as it dealt with investors and lenders in commercial 7 property who's primary objective was financial profit. Where as here, profit may only be a 8 small part of Plaintiff's primary objective as an investment in a home as a primary 9 residence.

10 Citing a Nevada Supreme Court case, Defendants argue Plaintiff is not entitled to be 11 placed in a better position because of a breach than she would have enjoyed had the 12 contract been performed. (Id. at 4-5, citing Cheyenne Constr., Inc. v. Hozz, 720 P.2d 1224 13 (Nev. 1986)). Defendants argue since the property was overburdened and Plaintiff could 14 not have sold the property for a profit, by allowing expectation damages Plaintiff will be 15 placed in a better position than if there had been no breach. ((Defs['] Reply Supp. Mot.
16 Summ. J. 5, ECF No. 38). In Cheyenne, a paving contractor, Cheyenne, was sued for 17 breach of contract due to defects caused by partial performance because he did not apply 18 certain seal coats and top coats as per the contract. See Cheyenne, 720 P.2d at 1225.
19 Cheyenne countersued for nonpayment on contract. Id. At trial, Cheyenne was awarded 20 the full contract amount, less the cost of the seal and top coats. Id. Hozz was, in turn, 21 awarded the full contract price he paid for the rework which included the same seal and top 22 coats. Id. The appellate court found that by reducing Cheyenne's award to cover the 23 missing prime and seal coats, and then awarding damages to Hozz to cover the application 24 of the same two treatments, resulted in Hozz receiving the benefit of the treatments without 25 the cost. Id. at 1227. It was held Hozz was not entitled to be placed in a better position 26 because of the breach than he would have enjoyed had the contract been performed. Id.
27 Though this case is persuasive and binding in its holding regarding unjust enrichment in 28 expectation damages with service contracts, this Court finds Cheyenne does not limit all

1 possible measures of expectation damages resulting from the breach of a contract when 2 property is overburdened with debt—specifically real property that is one's home and 3 primary residence. If the expectation at the completion of the contract is to own an 4 unencumbered home attached to a parcel of real estate which is freely transferrable by 5 devise or sale, then the value of the property less the mortgage burden at the time of the 6 breach may not fairly or accurately be the only measure of expectation damages.

7 . This Court finds Defendants have not met the burden to show there are no 8 genuine issues of material fact regarding damages in Plaintiff's breach of contract claim.
9 Therefore, Plaintiff's claim of breach of contract will stand as plead in the Complaint.

10 The remaining claim alleges that Defendant breached the implied covenant of good 11 faith and fair dealings required of all contracts. (Complaint 9-10, ECF No. 1-1). Nevada law 12 holds that “[e]very contract imposes upon each party a duty of good faith and fair dealing in 13 its performance and its enforcement.” A.C. Shaw Constr., Inc. v. Washoe Cnty., 784 P.2d 14 9, 9 (Nev. 1989) (quoting RESTATEMENT (SECOND) of CONTRACTS § 205). To succeed on a 15 cause of action for breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing, a plaintiff must 16 show: (1) the plaintiff and defendant were parties to an agreement; (2) the defendant owed 17 a duty of good faith to the plaintiff; (3) the defendant breached that duty by performing in a 18 manner that was unfaithful to the purpose of the contract; and (4) the plaintiff's justified 19 expectations were denied. Perry v. Jordan, 900 P.2d 335, 338 (Nev. 1995). Other than 20 Defendants' prior argument that there are no damages because Plaintiff's home was 21 overburdened with debt, they have not specifically addressed the elements required to 22 show a breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing. The Court finds Defendants 23 have not met the burden to show there are no genuine issues of material fact regarding 24 any element of this claim. Therefore, the claim that Defendant breached the implied 25 covenant of good faith and fair dealing will stand as plead in the Complaint.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, IT IS ORDERED that Defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment is DENIED.

DATED: This 26TH day of November, 2012.
